NORTH HERTS SANCTUARY WORKER FACES THE 'QUEEN OF MEAN'

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Tuesday 7 December

Carol Allen, a Project Worker at Hitchin-based North Herts Sanctuary, will appear this week on BBC1's 'Weakest Link'. The quick-fire general knowledge competition sees contestants not only have to answer tricky questions but also avoid being voted out at the end of each round by their fellow contestants.

Carol had to fill in a lengthy application to compete in the 'Weakest Link'. She then had to attend an audition in London. Once selected, she was flown to Glasgow for the filming of the show. Carol got more than she bargained for when she finally faced 'The Queen of Mean!'

"After all the anticipation of having to answer tricky questions in front of an audience, Anne Robinson put me on the spot by making me sing!" says Carol.

Carol has worked at the homeless hostel in Hitchin for one year. She works to help service users whilst they staying at the Sanctuary until they are provided with permanent housing.

To see if Carol is the 'Weakest Link' or if she triumphs, please tune in to BBC One at 17.15 on Thursday, 9 December.
